

City Employees Give Back to the Community

Even in challenging economic times, the generosity of the City of Manhattan employees continues to shine brightly throughout City Hall and outlying Departments. The City's core values – what is reflected within our Mission Statement – provide us with the foundation to excel at work and as community volunteers. We're proud of what this statement says about us.

- We are dedicated to serving our customers
- We value and respect diversity
- We work as a team
- We each do all we can
- We learn, change, and improve
- We work with integrity
- We focus on results

City employees donated numerous items to help support agencies during the 2013 United Way campaign and raised $8,117!

Employees participated in the annual United Way Campaign by preparing their food for the barbecue contest. Pictured to the left are members of the CMO barbecue team, Adam Bentley and Gary Fees.

This past year, City employees participated in numerous activities including: adopting several local families in need for the holidays; donating blood during the Red Cross blood drives; contributing and participating in the annual United Way campaign; and donating 420 pounds of food and $418 in monetary donations to help serve local agencies during the annual Project Manhattan campaign.

As do many in the community we serve, our employees give generously of themselves, their time, and money to help our neighbors in need. We are part of this community and make every effort to strive and make Manhattan a better place to live and work for everyone.

We make our Manhattan community better!
